Columbia Engineering and Tel Aviv University (TAU) Engineering are pleased to present a virtual symposium highlighting the exciting research in development at both of these leading academic institutions. The event aims to expand and enhance the collaborative activity between the institutions sharing knowledge, capabilities, and resources. This 4-day virtual event will build a foundation for cross-institutional and cross-disciplinary engagements through potential joint funding opportunities and visiting scholar programs.

Each day will focus on a particular research topic, and each session will consist of short technical talks presented by faculty from both institutions, followed by an open Q&A period. This event will be a chance to find a collaborator, to learn something new, and to celebrate science and engineering excellence.
